Places to visit

Our local towns and cities have inspired artists for centuries.

Our favourite local destinations feature seaside settlements and historic trails, taking in the historic city of Exeter and the infamous Cobb harbour of Lyme Regis, surely one of the must-see places to visit in Somerset.

Things to do

Cricket St. Thomas is close to some of the best things to do in Somerset, including its most iconic country houses. Steeped in history and boasting some of the region's finest parkland, these are considered some of Somerset's must-see attractions... but there's also a cider mill to explore for a different, more laid-back kind of local tradition.

THE BEST OF OUR GROUNDS AND GARDENS

We've got over 160 acres of gardens for you to explore – that's as big as one-and-a-half Vatican Cities, but the similarity ends there. Ours feature hilly parkland, pristine gardens, sheep-strewn farmland and our sparkling lakes. With so much to see, we've hand-picked three of the best things to visit within Cricket St. Thomas' grounds:

The Church of Cricket St. Thomas

Originally built in the 14th century and rebuilt in 1868, this Grade II listed church features a white marble statue of St. Michael, which for many years was stored flat because the ghostly white figure scared the locals when it was dark.

Cricket Old House

Perhaps more famous for its role as Grantleigh Manor in 'To The Manor Born', Cricket St. Thomas house has been standing in one form or another for around 600 years. We've kept its history intact while also letting you experience it with a spot of tea and cake.

The Old Wildlife Park

Now replaced with immaculately sculpted gardens, woodland walks, and grassy parkland, look closely as you explore and you might just be able to make out where the elephants and camels once roamed.

TOWNS AND CITIES

Somerset may be most famous for its countryside, but it's not all wilderness – whether you're looking to browse the shops, meander along the riverside, or kick your feet in the sand, we've selected the best places to visit near Cricket St. Thomas:

Lyme Regis

The Dorset town of Lyme Regis is notable for its fossil cliffs, stony and sandy beaches, and the iconic Cobb harbour, possibly the only landmark to be made famous by both Jane Austen and Meryl Streep. While there are some steep routes, there's also plenty of easy walking to explore.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

When we asked our team to suggest the best places to visit near Cricket St. Thomas we could never have predicted this top four. An eclectic mix that has something for everyone, whether it's National Trust houses, a spot of seaside serenity, or a boozy afternoon in the orchard:

Beer Beach

A shingle beach surrounded by white chalk cliffs, the village of Beer is quintessential Jurassic Coast. Guided tours of the 2,000-year-old man-made caves run several times a day, and mackerel-laden boats deliver fresh catches to the village's eateries.

Perry Cider Mill

This award-winning cidery has been using only Somerset apples for almost 100 years, and still operates on the same farm as they did in 1920.

Take in their working mills, locally sourced café, and museum housed in a 16th century thatched barn – Somerset to a tea (or cider).
